International Water and Wastewater systems - Supporting Social and Natural Communities

How Does a Blackwater System Promote Eco-Tourism?

On Monday, July 22, 2019, Peter Haase, Principal Engineer with Sherwood Design Engineers Inc. and Chief Technical Officer for Kanso Inc., will present on water and wastewater systems to aid rural communities, eco-tourism, and healthcare in countries including Fiji, Grenadines, Mexico, Haiti, Liberia, Rwanda and China. Come take a tour with us around the world to see how these innovative water conservation projects contribute to the health of communities and the environment.

Peter has 35 years of experience in civil, environmental, and water resources engineering. Peter has completed a broad range of engineering design and planning studies throughout California and internationally, including China, Mexico, Hawaii, Fiji, Honduras, Costa Rica, West Indies, Liberia, Rwanda and Haiti. Peter instructs courses and presents at international conferences on ecological engineering and small community water and wastewater management solutions. Peter holds a B.S. degree in Environmental Resource Engineering and a M.S. degree in Environmental Systems with an emphasis on international development and technology.
